Liaison Division,

STATINTL

Dear Mr. [REDACTED]

STATINTL In connection with a telephone request to Mr. Kenneth [REDACTED] from Mrs. Esther E. Drews, Supervisor of our International Information Center, it would be appreciated if the Division of International Finance could be put on routine distribution for two Central Intelligence Agency publications, i.e., Current Intelligence weekly review, and Current Intelligence digest-daily. This material should be addressed to the International Information Center, Room 2267, Federal Reserve Board. This office does not handle classified documents and distributes them on the basis "need to know."

We believe that information contained in these publications would be useful to our agency in discharging those functions in the international field which fall under the Monetary Authority of the United States. It is the responsibility of this Division to keep the Board advised on foreign developments affecting, or likely to affect, the level and direction of domestic economic activity, and, conversely, of the effects of changes in the level of domestic economic activity upon economic developments abroad. Any one in our Division who may have access to the requested documents will have been cleared for information up to and including TOP SECRET.

Very truly yours,

Donald E. Burns,
Assistant to the Director,
Division of International Finance.
